Grave View On Speech Of Admiral

Prompt Denial Anti-Aircraft Guns Manned

LONDON, April 5—(P)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that he personally gave directions that the British newspapers should suppress or discount Earl Stanhope's "man the guns" speech because it gave an incorrect impression.

Chamberlain said he had acted to "spare the public unnecessary agitation" over the declaration made by Stanhope, first lord of the admiralty, last night.

The prime minister said amid laughter and cheers: "Apparently my efforts to spare the public unnecessary agitation were not altogether successful but the incident will at any rate have served to demonstrate the constant readiness of the navy for all eventualities."

Chamberlain said Stanhope's statement was "unpremeditated" and denied the first lord of the admiralty had asked the press to give special prominence to his statement.

The prime minister's tendency to treat the incident as a misunderstanding left the impression that Stanhope's position in the cabinet would not be impaired.

Stanhope, in a speech last night, declared anti-aircraft guns of the fleet were manned "to be ready for anything."

Sharp Repercussions
The declaration provoked sharp repercussions. The premier's office issued a denial. The admiralty asked the press to suppress the statement.

Chamberlain was understood to have sought the advice of his cabinet ministers on whether to ask for Stanhope's resignation.

He was said to take a grave view of the speech because of the effect it might have upon the delicate European situation during the defensive alliance discussions with Poland—which already have inspired Nazi charges of an attempt to "encircle" Germany.

The prime minister said no other orders had been given by the admiralty other than that the practice of retaining some of the men on board their own ships in readiness to man the guns should not be relaxed, even on so special an occasion as the dinner and movie aboard the Ark Royal at which Lord Stanhope spoke.

Deputy Labor Leader Arthur Greenwood, who asked the prime minister for the statement on Lord Stanhope's speech, then inquired again:

Regret Expressed
"If the first lord's words were not premeditated, does the prime minister regard the first lord as a fit person to hold an important office?"

Greenwood added:
"Is not the prime minister making rather light of a serious business? He will give an assurance that such indiscreet, irresponsible and unpremeditated statements shall not be repeated in the future by responsible officers of the Crown?"

Chamberlain replied:
"No. My noble friend has expressed regret to me that his words—which perhaps were not very happily chosen—should have given rise to so much comment and so much unnecessary alarm. I do not think that affects the efficiency of my noble friend, with whom I am perfectly satisfied."

Chamberlain was understood to have asked the advice of his colleagues after talking privately with Stanhope this morning. The admiralty chief made his declaration in a speech aboard the aircraft carrier Ark Royal at inauguration of government-sponsored cheap movies for the fleet at Plymouth last night. The show was

Occupation Of Albania

BELGRADE, April 5—(P)—Information has been received in usually reliable quarters in this Yugoslav capital that Italy intends to begin occupation of Albania sometime tonight.

Official circles in Belgrade declared, in comment of this information:

"We are not frightened by these developments as we are on friendly terms with Italy."

It was asserted Italy already had informed Yugoslavia of her intention to occupy Albania and to place her under Italian protection.

County Court To Meet

The county court will be in session Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Sophomores Win Debate

The sophomores won the first round of the Smith-Cotton interclass debates, held Tuesday night in the school library. Jimmy Myers and Frank Barnes Long, the winning team, upheld the negative and defeated the junior team, George Dugan and Maxine Grother. The subject was Anglo-American alliance.

Myers and Long won by a unanimous decision of the judges, Misses Juanita Young and Nettie Lamm and Kenneth Raab.

Certificates were given to Jack McCullough, James Van Wagner and Oscar Scott, for the number of points earned in their inter-school debates. They are now members of the National Forensic league.

Seals Sales On For Funds To Aid Crippled

Local Portion Of Receipts To Help Support Clinics

The week prior to Easter has been declared as Crippled Children's Week in Missouri. During this week the Missouri Society for Crippled Children and the affiliated local societies are conducting a Seal Sale in an endeavor to raise funds to carry on this campaign.

The Pettis County Society has been in existence for 11 years, being organized in April, 1928, under the sponsorship of the local Rotary Club. Following a county wide survey the first free clinics for crippled children was held in November, 1928. Since this first clinic, a free clinic has been held every two years. The next clinic will be held at the Bothwell hospital on April 14th of this year.

Approximately 300 children have been examined in the clinics held by the Pettis County Society. As a result of these clinics over 100 cases have been hospitalized in either St. Luke's and Mercy hospitals in Kansas, Barnes and Shriners hospitals in St. Louis or in the State hospital at Columbia. Many other children have been provided with artificial limbs, braces, special shoes, woolen socks, crutches, milk, cod liver oil, and transportation to and from these hospitals for ambulatory treatment.

The problem of aiding handicapped children in Pettis county or in any other county has by no means been solved. New cases are continually being found and every year finds more children succumbing to the effects of crippling diseases, such as those caused by infantile paralysis, birth injuries, arthritis, etc. The University of Missouri reports that there are 10,000 crippled children in Missouri under 15 years of age and that at present only 6 or 7 per cent are being adequately cared for and hospitalized. In addition, there is the problem of providing these handicapped individuals with some trade or training so they may be economically independent in their adult life.

From the receipts from the Easter Seal Sale, 40 per cent is retained by the local Society, 10 per cent goes to the State Society contingent fund and 50 per cent goes to the State Society general fund. The local funds are used in holding local free clinics such as will be held on April 14 and for braces, shoes, transportation, etc.

The people of Pettis county the physicians, and all the local civic organizations have always responded liberally to appeals for aid in crippled children's work and it is hoped that they will do so again this year. The sale of seals is to be conducted by mail and if you have not received seals and desire to help in this work, write of phone William Courtney, president of the Pettis County Crippled Children's Society, or Dr. Gordon Stauffer, chairman of the Seal Sale committee, and seals will be sent to you.

Study Location Of Radio Station

R. A. Drollich and W. B. Drollich, brothers, who have been authorized by the federal radio commission to construct a radio station in Sedalia, were here Tuesday and accompanied by members of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce inspected several available buildings for location of the station. Among those places considered are: Bothwell Hotel, Ilgenfritz building and the Liberty theatre. If suitable tower and studio facilities are not found in town, it may be necessary to build them outside the city limits. It is proposed to have the station in operation within sixty days. Call letters have not been assigned, but the power facilities will be 250 watts daytime and 100 watts night time on 1500 kilocycles.

Approve House Figure On The Relief Fund

Hundred Million Measure To The Senate Thursday

WASHINGTON, April 5—(P)—The Senate Appropriations committee approved a $100,000,000 relief fund today shortly after a sub-committee had recommended that amount. That also was the sum voted by the House after President Roosevelt asked $150,000,000.

Sub-Committee Sanction

WASHINGTON, April 5—(P)—A Senate appropriations sub-committee voted unanimously today to recommend a $100,000,000 relief appropriation. That sum was voted by the House after President Roosevelt had requested $150,000,000.

Members of the sub-committee said the $100,000,000 allotment would receive general support from both administration supporters and economy-bloc senators.

Administration floor leaders previously had sought a compromise $125,000,000 appropriation, but economy-minded senators refused to support such an allocation.

The full appropriations committee was to act on the relief allotment later today, and it was expected to come before the Senate tomorrow.

Well-informed senators said Mr. Roosevelt, vacationing at Warm Springs, Ga., has been keeping hands off the relief fight. They said he stood by an earlier statement that if Congress wanted to reduce the appropriation, it must take the responsibility for any suffering that might result.

Senator Adams, (D-Colo.), leader of the economy bloc, and his followers have offered not to seek a cut below the House figure if administration leaders will not try to increase it. Leaders on both sides were hopeful they could send a generally-acceptable measure to the Senate floor tomorrow.

In the House, the appropriations committee selected a 12-man sub-committee, headed by Rep. Taylor (D-Colo.), to make a comprehensive investigation of the WPA. The sub-committee will hold an organization meeting tomorrow.

Meanwhile, senators seeking an increase in farm appropriations, endeavored to unite their forces. Senator Lucas (D-Ill.), leader of a new wheat-dairy bloc, invited southern senators interested in cotton to shape a joint program.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.), said any agricultural increases agreed on probably would be included in the $835,000,000 appropriations bill passed by the House and pending in the Senate. Russell is chairman of the Senate appropriations sub-committee considering it.

First proposals to the joint group called for $240,000,000 to finance removal of surplus crops through subsidizing both domestic consumption and exports, and $175,000,000 for "parity" payments designed to raise farm income.

Senator Lucas said, however, that all figures were tentative until the two groups agreed to work together.

Any sum they propose will be an addition to the $500,000,000 for benefit payments and about $90,000,000 for surplus removal operations included in the House bill.

As committees worked on the

Hopkins' Vote Home Grinnell

Inquiries Aroused As To Political Motive In Change

By D. Harold Oliver
WARM SPRINGS, Ga., April 5—(P)—Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins' announcement here that he intended shortly to establish a voting residence in his boyhood home of Grinnell, Iowa, had Warm Springs flooded today with inquiries from the politically-minded in Washington and elsewhere.

The fact Hopkins is here as a house guest of President Roosevelt and has been mentioned frequently as the chief executive's first choice for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1940 focused unusual attention on the commerce secretary's decision to move from New York state to Iowa.

Hopkins, in confirming reports which originated from "close friends" in Grinnell, denied flatly politics had any bearing on the situation. He said he felt it his duty to his motherless 7 year old daughter, Diane, to afford her a permanent home and could think of none better than the state of his birth.

This explanation failed to satisfy those who queried today by telephone and telegraph. There was a demand upon newspaper men at Warm Springs to get a further comment from Hopkins. He kept himself unavailable temporarily after the original confirmation.

The cabinet officer did deny vigorously, however, recent rumors he was about to resign his commerce post because of ill health. He came south with the president to recuperate from an attack of intestinal influenza, but scoffed at the idea he had suffered a recurrence of the stomach ulcers which required surgical treatment in Rochester, Minn., some months ago.

Speculate On Motive
In speculating on the possible political motive in the change in residence, observers recalled that shortly before Mr. Roosevelt came to Warm Springs for his Easter holiday, Edward Birmingham,

French Troops To Sanjak Area

Assurances On Keeping Open Dardanelles

PARIS, April 5—(P)—It was officially announced today that French troop reinforcements have been dispatched to the Sanjak (district) of Alexandretta, but the number of troops en route was not given.

The dispatch of reinforcements was declared to be in full accord with existing French-Turkish understandings and official quarters said negotiations for settlement of the Sanjak question were proceeding normally.

France was reported in informed quarters to have assured Rumania that in event of European war the Dardanelles would be open to French and British warships.

Busily building the southern part of the "Stop Hitler" bloc, France was said to have received assurances from Turkey which controls the entrance to the Black sea and Rumania's "back door," of support for the French-British lineup to preserve the independence of small European countries.

In exchange, these sources said, Turkey was told she could eventually annex the Sanjak (district) of Alexandretta although unrest in Syria made that impossible for the present.

Turkey was represented as being willing to wait, since the government of President Ismet Inonu already leaned toward the French-British bloc because of its own fears of Germany's expansion southward.

These developments followed assurances yesterday by the Turkish ambassador that Turkey would not seize the Sanjak by force after Paris newspapers had reported 60,000 Turkish troops on the border ready to occupy the territory.

Turkey, however, informed France she wished to annex the 10,000 square mile district "as quickly as possible."

Charge Illegal Contributions By Company

Union Electric Is Accused By The SEC Today

WASHINGTON, April 5—(P)—The Securities commission accused the $250,000,000 Union Electric Company of Missouri today of illegally making contributions to political parties and "unknown" persons running for state and other offices.

It was the first time the SEC has charged a utility company with making political contributions in violation of federal law.

Federal law provides prison terms of as much as five years and fines up to $10,000 for some of the violations charged in the commission's order.

A public investigation on the commission's accusations was ordered for April 24.

The company operates in St. Louis and in five adjacent Missouri counties. It is a subsidiary of North American Edison Company and the North American Company, both of which are registered holding companies under the public utility holding company act of 1935.

Claim Improper Collections

The order calling the investigation said the commission had reasonable grounds to believe that from January 1, 1933, to date, the company collected "and is now collecting" money from employees, officers, directors, lawyers, contractors and others "through the medium of padded expense accounts."

Such collections, the commission charged, "are not properly contained in or reflected on the books" of Union Electric Company of Missouri.

The commission's order added that there were "reasonable grounds to believe that from January 1, 1933, to date, Union Electric Company of Missouri made contributions in connection with the candidacy, nomination, election and appointment of persons (whose names are unknown to the commission) for and to offices and positions in the government of states, political subdivisions of states, and agencies, authorities and instrumentalities of the foregoing; and made contributions to and in support of political parties, committees and agencies thereof."

Content Names Not Entered

There are further reasonable grounds to believe, the commission said, "that the amounts of the contributions mentioned x x and the name or names of the

Urge Amending On Neutrality

WASHINGTON, April 5—(P)—Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state during the Hoover administration, said today he believed America should take sides in any foreign conflict which threatened "the safety and defense" of the United States.

Stimson, who had lollied back in his chair during much of his cross examination at a session of the senate foreign affairs committee, leaned forward intently when Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) insisted he say definitely what his nation should do if friendly nations were drawn into war.

In the event Russia should align itself with France and England, Stimson said emphatically, he would favor America's going to war.

He added the proviso regarding this country's "safety and defense."

Rain And Colder Is Prediction

ST. LOUIS, April 5—(P)—A flareback of winter brought warnings of near freezing temperatures for Missouri tonight.

Orchardists throughout the state expressed fear an unseasonable cold snap might seriously damage their crops. Low readings last night ranged between 46 and 50 degrees.

A cold rain was general over the state today and the government weather bureau said it would continue through tonight, except in the extreme northwest portion.

The amounts slightly exceeded one inch at several stations in western Missouri.

Precipitation measured 1.06 inches at Kansas City early today; Sedalia, 1.1; Jefferson City, .78; Hannibal, .54; Columbia, .40; Springfield, .27; St. Joseph, .47; St. Louis, .25; Cape Girardeau, .15; Poplar Bluff, .10; St. Thomas, .70; Boonville, .60, and Waverly, .62.

Witnesses Before The Grand Jury

The grand jury, which convened Monday afternoon, and recessed until this morning, reconvened at 9 o'clock and has been in session all day.

There were a number of persons, believed to be from out of town, who appeared before them this morning. They apparently were volunteer witnesses, as there had been only one subpoena issued and that was for an out of state resident who was in the city.

As all investigations in the grand jury room are secret there was no indication of what the jurors might be investigating.

Victories For Democrats In Most Of Cities

In St. Louis Party Elected Fourteen For Aldermen

By The Associated Press.

Democrats retained control of municipal offices in most of the Missouri cities holding elections yesterday, rolling up substantial majorities in St. Louis and smaller margins in Jefferson City, Poplar Bluff and Columbia.

The Republicans, however, made some inroads in the strong Democratic totals of previous years. Contests in many municipalities were non-partisan. County superintendents of schools were elected throughout the state.

In St. Louis, 14 Democratic candidates for aldermen were swept into office on a ticket headed by president of the board. With all the city's 783 precincts reported, Mason had 98,508 votes to 66,373 for Clifford Greve, his Republican opponent.

Clinton T. Watson, Democrat, defeated William E. Caulfield, Republican, 17,192 to 13,934, in a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of State Senator John M. McKeon.

Mayor Jesse N. Owens, of Jefferson City, was re-elected over Fritz Schott, Republican, 4,266 votes to 3,573. The Republicans gained two seats in the 10-man council.

Poplar Bluff's Democratic mayor was re-elected over Dr. A. R. M. Rowe, Republican, by a majority of nearly 800 votes. All other Democratic candidates won their races easily, with one member of the city council unopposed.

In Columbia, a slate headed by H. L. Wilson for mayor was swept into office without Republican opposition.

Versailles re-elected Douglas Hubbard mayor over Dr. William Bell, 419 to 391, in a non-partisan contest.

Lamar elected two Democrats and two Republicans to the city council.

Democrats elected four city councilmen in Boonville.

Report Of Bribery

Earl Rutherford, Republican mayor of Lamar, was reelected for the fourth time by a margin of only 20 votes over his Democratic opponent, Harold Chancellor, in an election marked by bribery charges. City Marshal M. D. Bass said two women told him a man paid them a dollar apiece for their votes and Sheriff Floyd Bales asserted he expected 25 or more persons would be arrested in connection with other complaints.

Three Republicans and two Democrats were elected to the Carthage city council, a gain of one additional seat for the Republicans who now control the council.

In Moberly, Mayor T. J. Tydings won by 2,423 votes over E. A. Wilcox, former mayor, who attempted a write-in campaign.

Democrats won four aldermanic seats in Sedalia.

Carrollton elected Harold M. Austin, a Democrat, mayor.

Brookfield elected Raymond Clements, J. C. Stinson, Harry Kearns and W. E. Johnson councilmen in a non-partisan election.

Dr. W. B. Cuthbertson, Liberty's former mayor, defeated Mayor Robert Don Carlow in a non-partisan contest.

Maryville re-elected Mayor L. B. Campbell over former mayor O. L. Robey. The election was non-partisan.

Jim Idol, a Democrat, was re-elected mayor of Harrisonville by a broad margin over Ray L. Shubert, Republican.

Belton chose W. J. Bradford for a third term as mayor over A. F. Hundley.

In Trenton, M. L. Elledge was re-elected mayor over T. J. Sawyer in a non-partisan vote.

Republicans stepped ahead in Macon, electing three councilmen to the Democrats one.

Mayor George P. Stenger of California was unopposed.

The Democrats captured control of the city council in Lebanon.

Knipp In Third Beats Pringle By One Vote

E. H. McLaughlin, H. S. Barman, A. J. Knipp and Dr. F. M. Fulkerson, all Democrats, were elected members of the city council for a term of two years, according to unofficial returns of the city election Tuesday. They defeated Murrell Hayden, Gus Gehlken, A. L. Pringle and George James respectively, all Republicans.

The closest race was in the third ward where Knipp and his opponent, Pringle, ran "neck and neck" in the five precincts in the ward, the final unofficial returns showing 874 for Knipp and 873 for Pringle, a majority of one vote for Knipp. This ward is normally Democratic.

Pringle, a retired Missouri Pacific shops foreman, was supported by a "Pringle For Alderman" club, headed by LeRoy Dent, a Democrat.

Another close race was between H. S. Barman, Democrat and Gus Gehlken, Republican, in the second ward, with Barman totalling 476 votes and Gehlken 465, giving Barman a majority of 11 votes.

McLaughlin Leads Ticket

McLaughlin, first ward, led the Democratic ticket with a majority of 352 votes over his opponent, Hayden, and Dr. F. M. Fulkerson, fourth ward, won over James by 184 votes.

Three of the winners, Barman, Knipp and Fulkerson, were re-elected, Barman for his third term, and the council will continue to be composed entirely of Democrats.

C. F. Scotten, Democrat, was re-elected county superintendent of schools for his fourth consecutive term of four years each. He was unopposed. This office is non-partisan.

Other school issues voted on in the city election were: a nine months school and $1 levy on the $100 valuation. The official count on these will be made by the Board of Education, but their approval by the voters is practically assured.

Two On School Board

Two members of the school board, Richard Keenan, Republican, and Allan O'Bannon were elected. The school board is non-partisan, each party names one candidate and nomination means election. O'Bannon was re-elected. Keenan, who resides in the second ward, is believed to be the first to serve from that ward in a great many years.

Matt Holtzen, Republican county committeeman, when asked by a reporter Tuesday night if his party would contest the election of Knipp, and perhaps Barman, said that would not be determined until after the official count is made.

This will be on April 17, and is made by Mayor Julian H. Bagby, president pro tem of the city council, Elmer C. Summers, and City Clerk J. M. Bailey.

Faith Unshaken

Fernando De los Rios joins Eduard Benes in exile here, each to be a teacher. And so a little living spark of the ruins of both the Spanish and Czech republics glows on in the United States.

"Our cause is as eternal as is the value of the dignity of man, the essence of liberty," says De los Rios, formerly ambassador from the Spanish republic.

"No authoritarian regime can be permanent—the nature of it is temporary. We shall not die. We shall be again free. We have always risen as a free people. We will again, soon or late, and I believe it will be soon," says Benes, once president of Czecho-Slovakia.

Men who have been through what these men have been through can still hold their faith in popular government, and the eventual triumph of freedom. Shall the rest of us, who have been less severely tried, have less faith?

You Can't Get Away

Most everybody has moments these days when he would like to "get away from it all."

But it is easier to talk about it (and probably more fun) than it is to do it.

Take for a small example the case of James Dawson Fox of Dawson Springs, Ky. James is 78, a former farmer, and his only income is a $10 a month old age pension.

He lived in a rented house, but he wasn't paying any rent. So when the roof started to leak, James didn't have the crust to ask repairs from the landlord. James moved—into a nearby cave, where nobody thought of rent.

But there was one difficulty with the cave, as James found out after he moved in. The roof leaked.

And that is why people struggle along with the leaky unsatisfactory institutions that rule the world today. They are afraid a new roof will leak just as badly.

Profitless Punishment

Law enforcement is not a notable place for a sense of humor, and perhaps that is just as well, else we might be overrun by strange punishments like those of Gilbert's Mikado who "made the punishment fit the crime."

But nevertheless it does no harm to observe some sense of fitness. Six months ago a Portland, Me., man was jailed for non-payment of a poll tax of $3.

Then somebody got to figuring a little. After six months in the calaboose, this little gentleman had cost the community about $100. He was released, without having paid the tax. Everything then stood as at first, except that the community was out $100.

Thus 33 citizens had to pay their poll tax to provide the money for a vain effort to collect it from the 34th.

As the old comic strip character used to say, "Is diss a system?"

So They Say

It was wonderful.—Joan Crawford, describing date with husband Franchot Tone on eve of expected divorce.

If It Is A Good Thing, Do It Right

People who care about how their government is run ought to sit down to a little lesson, provided by the effort in the Senate to slide through an increase in the tariff on vegetable oils.

Whether there ought to be such an increase is not discussed here.

But the method by which it is being sought is so bad that it ought to be noted.

The Senate was considering a bill relating to the mutual taxation of federal and state employees.

The vegetable oil people, whose position is supported by several well-organized and powerful lobbies, got an amendment tacked on to the tax bill which had nothing at all to do with the bill, but which provided a boost in the tariff on certain foreign products.

President Roosevelt very properly indicated that he would veto the bill if it passed in this form. He resents and naturally, a bill coming to him for signature which may be necessary and proper, but which carries an amendment on an entirely unrelated subject.

Thus if the original bill is important enough, there is pressure on the President to sign it, even though he thinks the unrelated amendment is vicious.

This is a frequent dodge in Congress, and it can't be condemned too often.

In this particular case, it is especially bad because the vegetable oil tariff is an integral part of the entire tariff system. It should be considered with, and as part of, the whole tariff plan. It is bad business to make up a national tariff policy piece-meal, sliding in concessions here and there wherever special interests can get them. It makes the whole tariff system a disreputable patchwork.

The vegetable oil people may have a perfectly good case. We don't know whether they do or not, and we're not guessing.

But it certainly should be considered in a tariff bill, on its own merits, and in connection with the whole tariff policy and our obligations to other countries under the Hull trade agreements.

The United States is facing a grave fight in the foreign trade field. One of our handicaps is that other countries do not know what they can count on from us. They know that any time any agreement may be upset by a sudden bit of lobby pressure in Congress. They know that in dealing with dictatorship they need not fear this.

This is no suggestion that we should turn our tariff-making functions over to any sort of a dictatorship. Congress should keep that power, but it should prove worthy of it by making tariff laws in an orderly manner and in accordance with an adopted principle and policy, and not haphazardly in response to every temporary pressure.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON—Senator Allen Ellender of Louisiana pulled his punch in the debate on subsidizing cotton exports. If he had wanted to tell all he could have accused two leading American firms of opposing the subsidy because of their interest in Brazilian cotton.

The two firms are Anderson, Clayton & Co., of Houston, and McCadden & Co., of Philadelphia. They have played a leading role in the expansion of cotton in Brazil, where production has been stimulated by the importation of $2,750,000 of U. S. cotton ginning machinery in the past five years.

In cotton selling these two firms not only stand high in the U. S. market, but Anderson, Clayton is the second largest and McCadden the third largest exporter of Brazilian cotton.

Application of export subsidies by the United States would appreciably reduce the price of U. S. cotton in the world market, and thus create fresh competition for other exporting countries—and for U. S. traders in those countries.

So operating quietly behind the scenes, Anderson-Clayton and McCadden are exerting powerful pressure to kill the export subsidy.

Ribber

You have to be tough-minded if you are a presidential candidate in Congress.

Though Representative Bruce Barton, dapper New York Republican and Representative Jack Cochran, veteran Missouri Democrat, are good friends, Cochran never passes up a chance to rib his younger colleague about his White House ambitions. Usually Barton takes the joshing good-naturedly, but the other day he blew up.

He was striding through the Speaker's Lobby outside the House chamber when Cochran, at the other end, spotted him and yelled in a loud voice, "Oh, Mr. President, Mr. President, just a moment!"

Barton automatically turned around just as everyone in the place looked up and saw him stop.

"How are you, President Barton?" bellowed Cochran again as the crowd tittered. Barton flushed angrily, turned on his heel and snapped, "Oh, shut up!"

Ghost Reports

Members of the TVA investigating committee are secretly probing an inside tip that the two minority reports panning the management of the great power project are the work of a pair of utility ghost writers.

They are Paul O. Peters, reported to have written the critical blast signed by Senator James Davis of Pennsylvania and Representative Charles A. Wolvorton of New Jersey, and Colonel James E. Cassidy, credited with authorship of the hostile report turned in by Representative Tom Jenkins of Ohio.

Throughout the extended inquiry, Wolvorton and Jenkins displayed open bias against TVA, frequently clashing with other committee members. Both Peters and Cassidy are known to have spent considerable time in the offices of Wolvorton and Jenkins when the minority reports were being written.

Peters, who worked for the Republican Congressional Committee during the 1938 campaign, has a long record of anti-TVA activity. He wrote a book and numerous articles assailing TVA, has previously supplied congressional critics with material for hostile speeches. Capitol Hill friends credit him with the boast that he had the keys to six senatorial and congressional offices.

Cassidy is a World War army engineer who once tried to get a job with TVA but was turned down by Dr. Arthur Morgan, ousted chairman, because "we did not know who his real employer was." Morgan gave this explanation to a House committee during an investigation of a leak on a secret General Accounting Office report on the TVA.

Acting as the representative of Congressman Andrew May, Kentucky member of the committee, Cassidy had obtained a copy of the report and used a mimeograph machine in the office of the Commonwealth & Southern Power Co., bitter TVA foe, to print a press release of denunciatory extracts.

Cassidy hotly denied that he had received utility pay for the job but as a result an amendment was passed by Congress requiring the Accounting Office to submit all TVA audits to the TVA before making them public.

Gallant Gentleman

Everybody in Washington feels sorry for Spanish Loyalist Ambassador de los Rios, while he, in turn, feels sorry for the squirrels.

On the day following the surrender of Madrid, de los Rios came to the State Department for a conference. As he left the building, he gave no evidence that he was a man without a country.

Walking up West Executive Avenue, he stopped to admire a squirrel which had just successfully negotiated the hazardous street crossing between the White House and the State Department. He extended his hand to the squirrel and smiled gently as it scurried up a tree to safety.

"Army Nags"

It may be true that "the old gray mare ain't what she used to be"—but not in the U. S. cavalry.

Despite mechanization and motorization, the army now has more and better horses than it had a few years ago. In 1936 there were 21,554 animals in the service; by June, 1939, the number is expected to increase to 22,662.

The improvement in quality is the result of careful breeding at the Army's three remount stations at Fort Royal, Va., Fort Robinson, Neb., and Fort Reno, Okla. Lieut. Col. T. J. Johnson of the Quartermaster Corps told a House committee that army veterinarians are developing horses which are establishing endurance records considered "unbelievable" ten years ago.

"The army wants 'big-bodied horses,'" Johnson explained, "and that is what we are getting. A big body makes for stamina and endurance. The time now made by cavalry on maneuvers would not have been possible ten years ago."

Note—An important factor in breeding powerful horses is feeding. Army veterinarians are sent to the University of Kentucky for scientific study in this field.

Side Glances

By George Clark

"We've just bought an old country house and I'm looking for some things to store in the attic."

His last week in which Jesus made no public appearance. His enemies were busy; He Himself took sanctuary. Where? Doubtless in Bethany. Spring had brightened the low hills which hid it from Jerusalem. He had always loved their beauty; they were a sanctuary.

His friends there were so understanding; friends are always a sanctuary. Surely also Jesus withdrew into the sanctuary of His own spirit. The great crises of life always demand seasons of self-withdrawal, when we find the meanings of the past in meditative retrospect and mobilize our spiritual forces to meet the challenges of the future.

Such unrecorded days are the secret of our surest peace, the source of our surest strength. But they can not quiet and empower us unless, in the sanctuary of the spirit, we find the assurance of our Father's favor and hear His directing voice. The sanctuary of Jesus' spirit was garrisoned by the peace of God. So He faced the Cross unafraid.

Prayer: Teach us, Lord of our unrecorded days, the secret of so being alone with ourselves as to find in solitude sources of power and in the sanctuaries of our own souls Thine assuring presence. Amen.

SERIAL STORY

'MRS. DOC' BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

The characters and situations in this story are wholly fictional.

Yesterday, Alan, Farrell and other doctors prepare to rush to the scene of the dam break. As Alan pulls out into the darkness, Emily cries, "Alan—come back. I love you!"

CHAPTER XVII

RAIN mixed with her tears as Emily stood alone on the dock, watching the lights of the launch grow dim in the distance. The roar of the motor faded into a feeble murmur. Then, at last, the light was gone, and the still cold of midnight was broken only by the gentle lapping of waves against the piling, and the patter of rain on the wooden planks.

Alan—her husband—gone! Gone out into the darkness, perhaps never to return. Emily shuddered at the thought. Suddenly she realized that her clothing was soaked, her hair dripping. Slowly she made her way back to the car. The whine of a train whistle sounded in the distance.

Back across the bumpy flats she drove, stopping at a crossing where lights flashed red and a bell tinkled a warning. The midnight passenger. Far down the track she could see the light of the engine. In a moment the ground was trembling beneath her, the windows of the coupe rattling. Then the locomotive was hurtling toward her, into the glare of the headlights, grumbling, roaring, with its great drivers flashing sparks from the rails. Black coaches. Lighted windows. Faces staring out. Everything was blurred. Red and green lights shining through the rain. Emily hated that train. It might have carried Alan to St. Louis!

Her tears had dried on her cheeks before she reached home. The house was still ablaze with lights, but strangely quiet after all the clamor of a few minutes before. Alan's pipe, still faintly warm, on the ash tray beside her chair. The print of his head against the cushion. She could almost see him there, just as he had been when she had said she would marry Eric. Why had she said that, tonight?

The fire had died down to a few glowing embers. Methodically, she went from room to room turning off lights, until only the hall light was left burning. Then she ran swiftly up the stairs and the door of her room slammed behind her.

Alan sat beside Farrell in the stern of the launch. Father Johnson and Grady were farther forward; Weber and Eric up beside the pilot.

Rain beat into Alan's face, pounded against his raincoat. He hunched lower into the collar of his coat, turning his face to watch the lights of Summer melt into the shadows. He had heard Emily's shout as the boat pulled out into midstream, but her words were indistinct in the noise of the motor's exhaust.

Emily. How he loved her. In that last moment of parting, all rancor, all differences had been forgotten. He had felt only the soft tenderness of her lips, thrilling him again as they did each time he kissed her. If he had to die tonight, he thought, let it be soon, before the memory of that kiss is erased.

The boat swerved sharply to the right and he was thrown against Farrell. Before he could recover his equilibrium he caught a glimpse of a half submerged tree floating past, heard the scraping of broken branches along the bottom of the launch.

"Missed that one by an inch!" he heard Eric shout. "Everybody all right?" Then the glare of a flashlight on their faces.

Impenetrable darkness all around them, except for the two needles of light reaching ahead, trying to find unknown dangers. The slap of waves against the prow; the feel of spray in his face; the pounding of the motor in his ears and the throb of the propeller under his feet. Why must they go so slowly?

They were in the middle of the river now, he knew. This was the most dangerous part of the trip. If they could just make Price's Point in safety, the remainder of the trip would be comparatively easy.

SLOWLY they inched their way upstream. Eric peered out into the night, searching for landmarks he could not see. Mentally he calculated the launch's speed, glanced at the watch on his wrist from time to time. Thirty minutes. Twenty minutes. Fifteen minutes. Ten minutes more and they should be abreast the Point.

The spotlights glistened on floating boards, bobbing along in the waves. Occasionally one grated against the side of the launch, then went sliding on downstream.

"Luck's holding, so far," Eric shouted into the ear of the man at the wheel. "No big stuff—yet. Five minutes!"

The man nodded, gripped the wheel tighter. He leaned forward, muscles taut, as if to see beyond the light.

Eric tried to remember how the Point—a long finger of land—stretched out into the stream, how the river made a broad sweeping curve around it. He could see it as well as if the map had been before him. Down in front of Summer the river flowed from north-east to south-west; above the sharp bend at Price's Point from northwest to southeast. Once past the point, they could hug the right-hand bank, out of the current, and land just below the dam. If they could get past the Point!

They were still heading directly into the current, Eric knew, for waves kept slapping the prow, splashing spray over right and left sides alike. That dense shadow ahead, and to the left. Could that be the trees on the Point, or was it just a heavier fall of rain, cloaking the river in dense, blacker darkness?

The pilot saw it, too. It could be a mass of debris, wreckage from the dam that had cleared the Point, that was bearing down upon them. He spun the wheel and the launch responded, veered to the right.

The black shadow came nearer—on their left now and ahead. The launch wallowed in waves and the pilot gave the wheel another twist to meet the current head on. Then—

The black mass was on their left. Waves were beating against the left side of the prow. Waves were breaking over the left gunwale; waves shaking the rudder. The launch rocked in a trough. The prow swung slightly to the left. Light glistened on the wet bark of a distant tree. A few more yards and they were out of the pounding current.

They had made it!

LIGHTS flickered through the rain. Eric waved his flashlight over his head in an arc. The spotlights went out for a second, then blazed back into light again. Far ahead lights were moving, blinking.

A few minutes later, Baker was wading into the shallow water to guide the launch toward the bank. "Thank God you're here," he shouted as Eric bent toward him. "Got the doctors?"

"Four of them!"

"We need all of them," Baker shouted back. "Got the men up in the office—lights and tables there—12 badly hurt—can't find three of them."

Alan jumped out as the launch grated on the beach, landing in water half way up to his knees. An arm grasped his elbow. He turned to see Harry Brown's face close to his.

"You're all right, Harry?" Alan asked quickly. "How about the Price boys?"

"I'm all right, Doc," Harry said. "Bud Price is missin'."

Bud Price. The old man's youngest boy. No time to think.

"Get all that stuff out of the launch and up to the office," Alan ordered the men grouped around them. "We've work to do."

Hopkins' Vote Home Grinnell

Democratic state chairman for Iowa, called at the white house. Birmingham insisted the call was social and for the purpose of "talking over old times."

It also was recalled that in the 1938 primary campaign, featured by the president's famous "purge" effort, Hopkins announced that were he still a voter in Iowa he would cast his ballot for Rep. Otha D. Wearin for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

James Roosevelt, eldest son of the president, also inferentially backed Wearin, but Senator Guy M. Gillette, the incumbent, won the primary hands down and squeezed through in the November election. Gillette was a white house luncheon guest immediately after the primary vote had been counted.

It has been generally accepted, in Washington that Hopkins is one of the president's most intimate friends and political advisers. He first became associated with the executive when the latter was governor of New York and came to the national capital early in the administration as WPA administrator. He was elevated to the cabinet at the beginning of the year when Daniel C. Roper resigned as secretary of commerce to attend to his private affairs.

But an enigmatic silence prevailed around "the little white house" atop Pine Mountain today concerning political implications of Hopkins' decision to return to the soil from which he rooted.

Hopkins was born in Sioux City, Iowa, and moved with his family to Grinnell in his early boyhood. He was graduated from Grinnell college.

He migrated east as a young man and took up social work in New York state. Some politicians in the Democratic party have argued Hopkins could not swing the New York delegation to the 1940 convention should he be disposed to run.

Observers here wondered whether his return to Iowa was a move to get an earlier foothold in the convention.

Students Hear Business Men

The Smith-Cotton senior high school students, instead of going to an assembly program in the auditorium this morning, went to particular rooms in the high school where various business men and women of Sedalia spoke on their occupations or professions.

They were: Dr. Gordon Stauffer, representing medicine; J. U. Morris, agriculture; D. C. Davis, electrician; Mrs. H. C. Johnson, music; M. D. Weathers, grocery business; Miss Nadine Anderson, nursing; Mrs. Everett White, secretarial and business work; Mrs. Florence Thomas, beauty culture; L. P. Andrews, Jr., architecture of the modern home; Alexander Fabry, chemical engineering; M. C. Abeles, civil engineering; J. H. McQuiddy, machinist; W. L. Whitaker, air conditioning and heating; Tom Webber, aviation; Paul Hedderich, department store business; C. F. Scotten, teaching and Henderson Rymer, radio.

Charge Illegal Contributions By Company

person or persons, organizations or agencies to whom said contributions were paid, are not entered in or shown by the books, records and accounts of Union Electric Company of Missouri.

It was also charged that certain financial statements filed with the commission by Union Electric were "false and misleading" regarding various items of receipts and expenditures "whereby the expenses were made to appear substantially greater than was actually the fact and the receipts were made to appear substantially less than was actually the fact."

The commission's order also asserted there was reason to believe "that from January 1, 1933, to date, the books records and accounts of Union Electric Company of Missouri contained entries purporting to show charges for legal fees, expenses incidental to necessary legal work, travel, entertainment and miscellaneous expenses of officers, directors, employees and agents, which were not incurred as set forth in x x x said books records and accounts."

It is necessary, the commission said, to determine the amount "and other details" of any receipts or expenditures of Union Electric Company since January 1, 1933, and the extent to which such receipts and expenditures are entered on or omitted from the records of Union Electric and have been and are now reported to North American Edison Company and the North American Company.

Also to be determined, the SEC said, is the extent to which various "acts and practices" may have "distorted or otherwise made incorrect" financial statements filed with the commission by Union Electric, North American Edison Company or North American Company.

The commission appointed James G. Ewell as trial examiner for the investigation. It gave him power to issue subpoenas, take evidence and to require the production of any relevant records.

appropriation measures, the Senate passed yesterday a bill to remove tax immunities of federal and state employees. The Supreme court ruled recently that the federal government could tax state workers' incomes and the states could levy on federal jobholders.

The Senate bill included judges and members of Congress among those to be taxed, but prohibited retroactive levies. Federal judges appointed since 1932 pay federal taxes under specific legislation, but the Senate bill will remove immunity from all judges. Congressmen pay federal income tax but not state levies.

A similar bill has been approved by the House, and a joint committee will reconcile differences between the two measures.

The Senate confirmed, 62 to 4, the nomination of William O. Douglas to be a Supreme court justice.

Grave View On Speech Of Admiral

"Trouble Brewing."

Denies New Precautions

The admiralty denied new precautions were taken last night and asked the British press to suppress the speech. Some, however, already had published it.

Stanhope assumed the admiralty post October 27, 1938. (Alfred Duff Cooper, his predecessor, resigned because he could not accept the Munich pact to partition Czechoslovakia.)

It was understood the discussions between Foreign Minister Joseph Beck of Poland and the British foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, resulted in a pledge that Poland would fight for Britain should she be threatened by an aggressor.

This would be in return for the British pledge to aid Poland, in effect constituting a military alliance. It probably will be announced formally in a communique Friday after the conversations are concluded late Thursday.

In the Mediterranean sphere, Britain was understood to have informed Italy that now that the Spanish war was ended, Italian troops should be withdrawn from Spain.

The foreign minister of Italy, Count Ciano, was said by London sources to have stated no Italian troops had landed in Spain recently. Ciano received the British ambassador, Lord Perth, in Rome yesterday.

Comment was soon forthcoming from Berlin. The noonday newspaper Zeitung Am Mittag, captioned its front page editorial: "Mars Inhabitants Now Before England." The newspaper recalled the October 30 scare in the United States over a radio dramatization of a Martian invasion.

"Does Lord Stanhope think the Martians now are marching on England?" Zeitung Am Mittag asked.

Reject Special Order On Bills

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—(P)—The House refused today to make final passage of 11 major appropriation bills a special order of business for a special session tonight.

A motion of Rep. John D. Taylor (D), Keytesville, for the special order failed by six votes. The House will meet tonight but on the regular order of business.

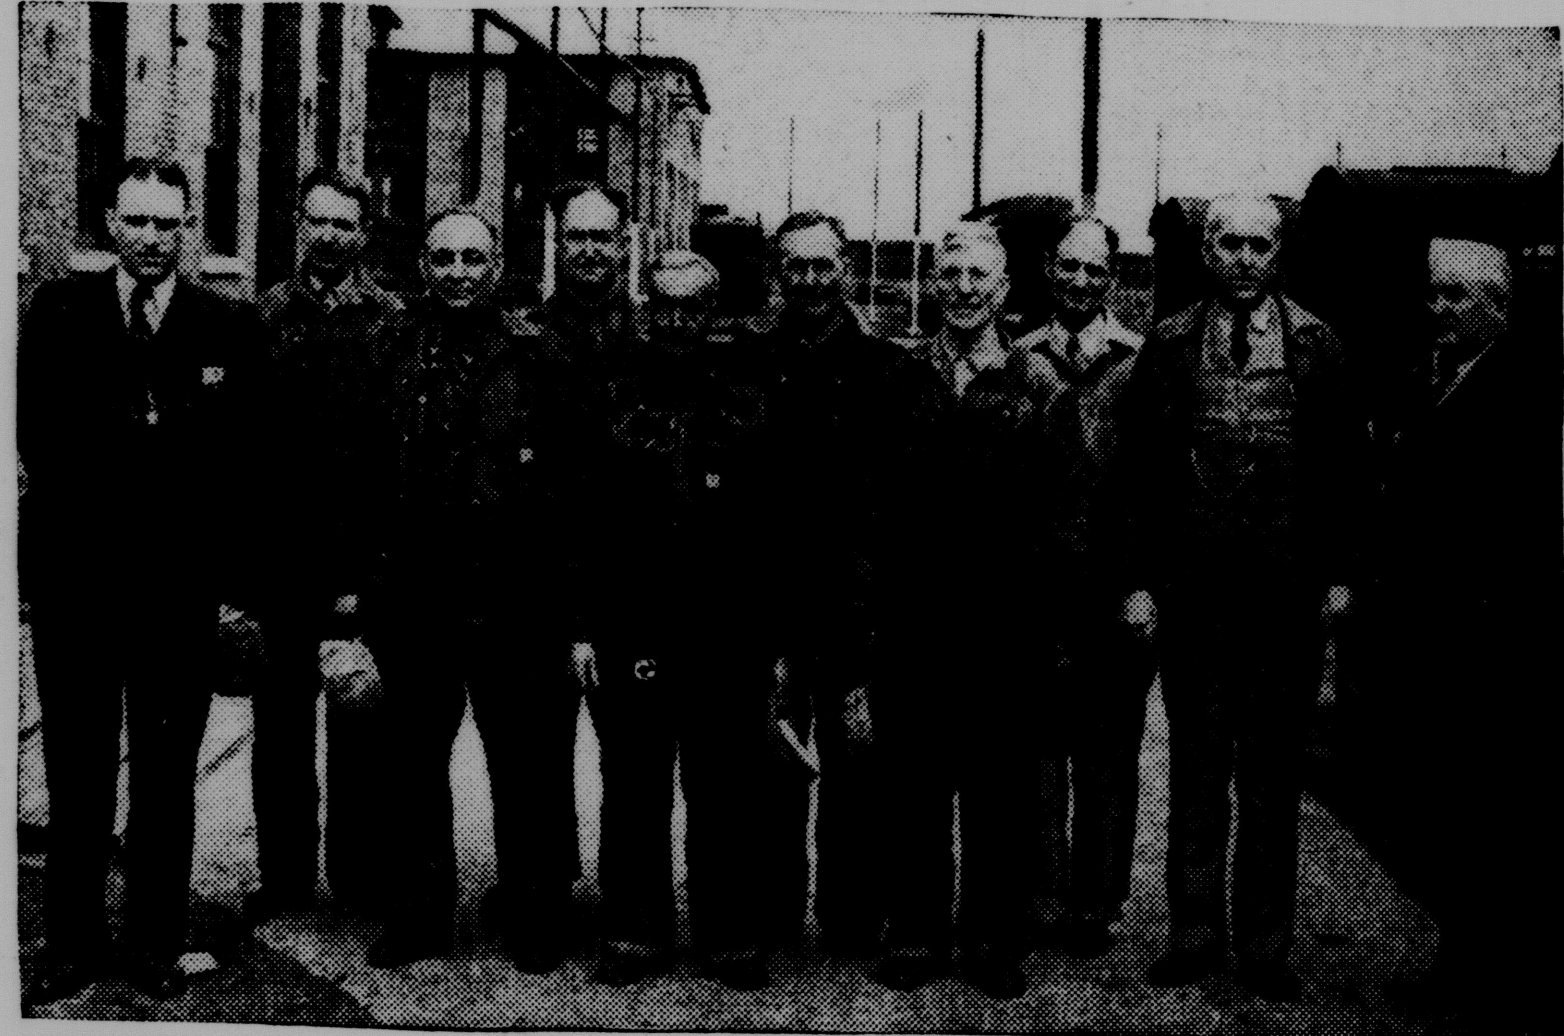

"I know nothing about a 'squeeze play' directed against certain bills," Taylor said in offering the appropriations motion. "My only purpose is to get these measures to the Senate so that body will have a reasonable time to act on them."

Rep. Lawrence Holman (D), Moberly, spoke against the special order.

"I am sure there is no attempt to squeeze out any bills," he said, "but there are a lot of measures on our calendar ahead of the appropriation bills and I think we should take them up in regular order."

The funding bills were perfected in rapid-fire order at a night session last week. Before that meeting, charges were made that many House proposals, including Gov. Lloyd C. Stark's Kansas City police bill, would be lost if the appropriation measures were rushed to the Senate.

A bill remitting penalties and interest on delinquent real estate and personal taxes on a sliding scale if paid within the next nine months, was passed by the House, 115 to 3, and sent to the Senate today.

Majority Leader Roy Hamlin (D) Hannibal, said there were $300,000 in back taxes on the books which the measure would aid in collecting.

"A similar bill passed in 1937 brought in $13,000,000," he asserted.

The remission of penalties and interest would be 100 per cent up to July 31 of this year, 75 per cent to September 30, 50 per cent to November 30, and 25 per cent to December 31.

Lebrun Again Head Of France

VERSAILLES, France, April 5.—(P)—President Albert Lebrun of France was re-elected for another seven-year term today.

He was the second man in the history of the French republic to be accorded a second term, which is for seven years and starts May 10.

The Daladier government had prevailed upon the 67-year-old former engineer to stand for reelection as a demonstration of national unity in the face of the unsettled European situation.

Fined For Driving While Intoxicated

Bert W. Goddard, of Fayette, charged with driving a car while intoxicated, pleaded guilty in the circuit court this morning and was fined $100 and costs, the latter amounting to approximately $20.

Goddard was arrested by Highway Patrolmen Paul Corl and Lester Estes, near the Bothwell lodge, north of Sedalia.

He was held in jail after making his plea this morning, pending the arrival of his brother, who he said, is bringing the money for the fine.

Crop Prospects Are 'Excellent'

ST. LOUIS, April 5.—(P)—Although Missouri was hit by one of the worst fall droughts on record, the United States Department of Agriculture reported today there are "excellent" prospects of good crops this year.

Farmers throughout the state the making rapid progress with their spring work, and the moisture situation was said to be satisfactory for present needs.

Oat planting is complete in most sections, and corn planting is under way in southeastern counties. Wheat made good growth and recovery from the fall and winter set-backs. Seeding was delayed generally on account of the dry hard soil. Barley and other winter pasturage is growing fast and much potato planting is reoperted. In some sections pears, apricots and plums are in bloom, and cherry buds are swelling.

In its first weekly bulletin of the new crop season, the agricultural department pointed out the drought was definitely broken by generous rains early in November. For the period, November to April, precipitation averaged above normal. Subsoil moisture gradually increased during the winter months, and the condition was restored to nearly normal in most localities by the end of March.

Petition Support To Police Bill

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—(P)—A petition signed by 30 Kansas City residents in support of Gov. Lloyd C. Stark's police bill, reached all members of the House today.

"As an independent representative group of home-loving and home-owning respectable citizens of this community, we urge your support and co-operation for Governor Stark in his program to free the Kansas City police department from local political domination," the petition said.

"Regardless of political affiliation, the experience of past years has shown that only with an unhampered department can this city hope for honest primaries and elections, and reasonable control of vice and crime."

Rep. O. B. Whitaker (R), Hickory county, presented a similar petition signed by more than 100 residents of his county.

"This was circulated by the oldest Democrat in my district," he said.

The lawmakers' mail continued to be heavy today following Stark's radio appeal for letters on the bill, but many members said the pleas were about evenly divided.

Salesman Was Injured In Fall

S. D. Harpel, traveling representative of the Crane Co., Kansas City, Missouri, received a severe head injury about 1:30 o'clock this afternoon when he fainted in front of the Bothwell hotel and fell upon the sidewalk.

Mr. Harpel had been standing in the lobby of the hotel talking with friends, when he complained of not feeling well and said he was going to step outside to get some fresh air before checking out.

He left the group and stepped outside and a few seconds later he was discovered lying on the sidewalk in a dazed condition. He was carried to a room in the hotel, and Dr. C. D. Osborne, hotel physician, summoned.

His condition is not serious.

Chancellor Hitler To Berchtesgaden

BERLIN, April 5.—(P)—Chancellor Hitler began today a 13-day stay at his large, comfortable retreat near Berchtesgaden. He left Berlin for Southern Germany last night after a trip that started March 22 with a voyage to his newly-acquired Memel and a cruise in the North Sea to heavily-fortified Helgoland.

He intends to observe Easter with members of his immediate entourage and to remain at the Chalet until April 18, two days before his 50th birthday anniversary which all Germany will celebrate.

Rally On Stocks Under Buying

NEW YORK, April 5.—(AP)—The stock market shifted gears for a rally today as Wall Street took a calmer look at events in Europe.

The market, having had a heavy fall, was considered by analysts in technical position to rally anyway and prices were quick to respond to buying. Some shares got up more than a point on the late move, with a few leading.

A turn for the better in European markets was followed by an appreciable let-up in selling here. Transactions approximated 900,000 shares against about 1,500,000 yesterday.

Bonds and commodities likewise benefitted from a life in selling pressure, although there was no rush to get aboard the rally.

Prominent in the comeback were Douglas, United Aircraft, Sperry, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Steel, American Smelting, North American, Chrysler, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Youngstown Sheet.

In the curb, moderate gains were in the majority, including Creole, American Cyanamid "B," Gulf Oil and Lockhead.

Chicago wheat ended unchanged to 1/4 cent a bushel lower. Corn ended 1/4 to 1/2 cent down. Cotton futures in late dealings were 15 cents a bale higher to 5 cents down.

Records Brought Before Jury

KANSAS CITY, April 5.—(P)—Bringing financial records of Democratic campaign receipts and expenditures in St. Louis from 1932 to 1936, John P. English, recorder of deeds of the City of St. Louis, today appeared before a federal grand jury investigating the 1935 Missouri fire insurance rate case.

On the trail of $447,000 disbursed by the late Charles R. Street in the insurance compromise, the jury presumably is trying to learn if any of the money showed up in campaign funds. The investigators have questioned persons connected with the state and Jackson County Democratic committee.

Yesterday the jury was shown financial reports of Democratic funds in Jackson County, filed with the secretary of state and presented by Tom B. Embree, a clerk in the secretary's office.

While waiting to testify English told newsmen there were no unusual contributions shown in the St. Louis records.

Aid Soon For The Dependents

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5—(AP)—Aid to dependent children's checks — withheld for February and March because of a shortage of funds — probably will be in the mails the latter part of this week. Social security officials were advised today of the federal government's approval of a $43,353 grant to complete the federal one-third financial participation in the program.

Today's Washington order brought to $150,749.99 the February and March federal grant for A. D. C. and administrative funds. The state legislature last week authorized $135,000 monthly for the child aid program.
The social security office announced today it was doubtful if the checks could be mailed before the end of this week because all must be redrawn to conform with the decrease in payments made necessary by the legislature's action in reducing the appropriation.

Son For King Zog And Queen

TIRNANA, Albania, April 5—(AP)—A son was born yesterday to Queen Geraldine and King Zog I, it was announced today.
An artillery salute of 101 guns notified the people that a crown prince had been born. Elaborate celebrations were ordered throughout Albania.
The queen was described as in excellent health.
Queen Geraldine, the former

Countess Geraldine Apponyi of Hungary, was married to King Zog last April.

The queen's father was the late Count Julius Nagy-Apponyi and her mother, the former countess, is Mrs. Gladys Stewart Girault, an American, now living in southern France.

The crown prince with American blood is expected to be named Skander in honor of Albania's national hero of the 15th century, Skanderbeg, who led a long and bitter uprising against the Turks.

His official title is Prince of the Albanians.
Several days of festivities throughout the mountain kingdom have been ordered.

Officials indicated that the prince would be reared in the Mohammedan faith of his father, since it was announced there would be no baptism. Queen Geraldine is a Catholic.

The queen, whose ancestry reaches back to Virginia's plantations, is 23 years old. The king is 43. The queen's grandmother was Virginia Harding of Virginia. The Hardings were early settlers in America, who first lived in New York and then moved to the south. During the Civil war some of them returned to New York.

There the queen's mother met the banker and marshal of the court, Count Julius Nagy-Apponyi of Hungary, and married him. The count died in 1924.

Despite her American blood, Queen Geraldine never has visited the United States. She was educated near Vienna.

Raising a Family

Mother Sets Iron Rules For Children—Mother's Mother Softens Them

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Why does Grandma give Johnny cookies?

Why all the little gifts and gratuities that mother might think are bribes?

Mother isn't jealous of Grandma, of course, but it may annoy her to see this bond created out of something that she herself has to fight, for the good of the child himself.

But that isn't the question. Why does Grandma do it?

Well, for one thing, she loves this child as well as she did her own children. But as a young mother, she did exactly as Johnny's mother is doing now. She had rules and routine, too, and often resented her own mother. So we are still not answered.

She has merely learned through the years that young hearts, like old hearts and all the in-betweens, occasionally seek a sanctuary "outside of authority." Let us say, "off the record."

Although they may not realize it, both Grandma and Mother supplement each other. Both are right, and in the child's mind there is no conflict or confusion. So Grandma pays out her cookies, gets down the teapot and shakes out pennies and doesn't tell when the jam in the panty shows the stick marks of some small vandal.

Let us forgive her and be grateful for her. She raised one family by conscience. She finds now that she can stretch conscience occasionally with justification.

It never pays to say, "Be a good little boy and I'll give you a nickel," for soon the child will have to be bought every time he behaves. Grandma knows all this, surely. She doesn't go that far.

When it becomes a case of tit-for-tat, the whole object of little concessions is lost. Her idea is more to give the little boy or girl a sense of fulfillment. They are more likely to co-operate in the harder routine of daily affairs if this inner hunger for small possessions and natural little gifts is wholesomely satisfied, at least part of the time. Mother may not see it that way.

Preserve Balance
You are thinking at this moment, possibly, that the humored child is the least co-operative creature in the world; that his demands become unreasonable and he won't play ball. But that only happens when the balance is lost and "humoring" becomes over-humoring, and "coddling" becomes over-coddling.

Another thing that you have a perfect right to refute is my intimating that mothers are strict and grandmothers regular sofa cushions. Often it is the other way around. When Grandma thinks that Johnny is being spoiled, she herself may turn strict.

And now a line to Grandma herself. Johnny is his mother's son. It is easy to overstep "ourselves" (for I, too, am Grandma).

Stamp News

PICTURED above is the design of the new U. S. 3-cent stamp which will be issued April 30 to commemorate the sesquicentennial of the inauguration of George Washington as the first President of the United States. It will be placed on first-day sale in New York and released throughout the country as soon after April 30 as distribution will permit.

The stamp will measure 84/100 by 1-44/100 inches, arranged vertically. It will be printed in purple ink by the rotary process and issued in sheets of 50.

The central motif depicts Washington taking the oath of office as the first President under the Constitution on the balcony of the Federal building in New York, April 30, 1789.

COLLECTORS desiring first-day cancellations of the new stamp may send a limited number of addressed covers, not more than 10, to the Postmaster at New York, with a cash or postal money order remittance to cover only the cost of the stamps required for affixing. Postage stamps will NOT be accepted in payment. Each cover should bear a pencil endorsement in the upper right corner to show the number of stamps to be attached.

Envelopes for covers should not be smaller than 3 by 6 inches and care should be exercised, since the stamp is of the special delivery size and arranged vertically, to allow ample space for affixing singles as well as blocks.

New Drug Powerful Weapon Against Hitherto Deadly Pneumonia

Latest among the developments of research in the chemistry of drugs is the new product called sulapyridine.

When any new drug is introduced into medical science nowadays, it is customary first to study its chemistry and then to test its usefulness on animals. Once the limitations of the drug as to its toxicity are established, physicians are given opportunity to test the preparation on patients in hospitals, where the safety of the patients can be maintained and where the reactions can be carefully measured.

Under the new Food and Drug Law a new remedy cannot be released for general use until such tests have been made. Early in March the Food and Drug Administration released for general use, throughout the country the new drug called sulapyridine.

Latest reports from all over the country indicate that this drug can accomplish marvelous results in pneumonia and in some infections caused by other germs. Results in pneumonia are so remarkable that in some places it has been suggested that this drug replace the use of the serum which, of course, also have considerable usefulness.

For instance, in one hospital it is stated that 154 children with pneumonia were treated with this drug and all recovered except one.

In cases of infection of the spinal fluid with the germ of pneumonia death used to be inevitable. A hospital recently reported that in 36 cases of this type, there were 30 recoveries when sulapyridine was used. In some instances physicians report that early use of this drug results in the prompt disappearance of the fever after which recovery occurs gradually.

Pneumonia used to be second in the list of the causes of death.

It is among the most feared of all diseases because it is known that in severe outbreaks as many as one-third of those who are infected may die of the infection and of the complications.

The new drug, according to reports which have come from Clinics widespread throughout the United States, seems to have a specific effect upon the germs of this disease and thus to be able to remove from the disease many of its terrors.

The research that has been made upon sulapyridine is a combined research in which the chemists, the pharmacologists, the doctors in the hospitals and governmental officials have participated.

Thus mankind benefits again by progress of medical science.

The Farmer's Proudest Boast— "I OWN A FARMALL"

It's no wonder that McCormick-Deering Farmall Tractor owners are proud to say: "I own a Farmall." Farmall ownership means smooth, low-cost power, outstanding performance, and dependability on every job you turn over to these sturdy, all-purpose tractors. In addition, there is Farmall's unequaled record for long life, high resale value, and complete nation-wide service. Ask us for a Farmall demonstration. We suggest that you see how the Farmall performs on a plowing job, for instance, like the F-14 shown above.

a discussion of the Christian character of the young man, Timothy. The modern home is confronted with conditions which our forefathers did not know. Everything, which can be, has been moved from the home. Education has been moved into the public school. The ordinary things that are usually performed in the home have all been moved. Religious training has been largely moved from the home; we now have Sunday schools we didn't use to have. The questions come to our minds. And the question on that may help us to answer that which confronts the modern home of today: How can the home be used to win this rising generation to Christ? Millions of young people today have turned their backs upon the church and upon Christ. They must be won back. If we expect our children to become and remain religious, they must have a religious atmosphere in the home in which to grow. Would you expect to take a new born plant that has responded to the warmth and sunshine of the spring and force it into a cold refrigerator and expect that plant to grow? One of the tragedies that has occurred over and over again is when a child has found Christ out side of the home and is beaming and running over with love and enthusiasm for is Christ, goes home and walks into a religious refrigerator.

The home was the first institution which God has ever ordaigned. It is set up before the school; before the state; and before the church. It is therefore the most powerful institution in the world.

The church is no better than the homes from which the children come. If the church life and home life does not agree, then the church life will suffer. This world can never be won to Christ unless there is a spiritual atmosphere. We should pray for those children and let the world of God speak to their hearts; we should place religious literature in our homes that they might be
